The Coming Harvest
Joni Lamb

I started watching Joni Table Talk about a year ago every Sunday after church, and it is the perfect way to continue into the Sabbath. Each episode invites the Spirit into my home and soul, and by the end I'm usually in tears with gratitude. When you speak, the love you express is sincere and palpable, it gets me every time. Thank you for your dedication to the Gospel and for helping others draw closer to Christ. I absolutely love your show.

HEAVEN IS LISTENING

with Jentezen Franklin

Many people believe prayer has to be long, eloquent, or emotional to make an impact. What have you learned about the power of simple, even one-word prayers?

JF: Jesus Himself warned His followers, “When you pray, don’t ramble like heathens who think they’ll be heard if they talk a lot.” That’s a direct quote from Matthew 6:7. So right there, we see that longer isn’t necessarily better. The Bible also declares that “the effective, fervent prayer of a righteous man avails much” in James 5:16. Notice it says effective and fervent—not long and eloquent.

When I look through Scripture, I find that some of the most powerful prayers ever prayed were incredibly short. Peter’s “Lord, save me!” in Matthew 14 was only three words, yet it brought Jesus immediately to his sinking side. The thief on the cross said, “Lord, remember me when you come into your kingdom”—nine words that opened the gates of paradise for him that very day. Short prayers often carry a sense of urgency that long prayers don’t. I’ve watched a mother shout the single word “Jesus!” when her toddler ran into a busy street, and watched every car miraculously swerve or stop. That one-word prayer was as powerful as the tongues of men and angels.

You say small prayers can unlock big miracles. Can you give us a story or example from your life where that happened?

JF: I vividly recall the season decades ago when Free Chapel; the church I pastor in Gainesville, Georgia; was relatively young and we hadn’t yet built our first sanctuary. We had scraped together enough money to buy eighteen acres of undeveloped land. We were excited, but there was a problem—it was basically a huge hill, and you can’t build on a hill. You need it flat.

At that time we had three girls and they were all still little, some of them still in car seats. Every day we’d drive by that acreage with the earth-moving equipment working on it, and I’d reach my hand out toward that property and shout “Grace! Grace!” to it. That two-word prayer comes from Zechariah 4, where God tells Zerubbabel that mountains of obstacles will become flat plains when you speak “Grace, grace” to them. Soon all three of the girls were doing it too! We’d turn the corner and I’d hear three little voices from three little car seats shouting “Grace! Grace!” with little hands stretched out toward that construction site. Today, that property is central home to a thriving multi-campus church that has touched lives around the world. A two-word prayer opened the floodgates of Heaven’s enabling power.

What do you say to the person who feels like they’ve prayed and prayed but nothing seems to be changing?

JF: I’d point them to the story of the nobleman in John chapter 4. His son was dying, and he traveled two days uphill just to beg Jesus for help. Jesus spoke the word and the father headed home. But here’s what many people miss—when the servants met him on the road with the good news, they told him the boy “began to get better” at the very hour Jesus spoke. The healing was progressive, not instantaneous.

Some healings come like lightning, but others come like the dawn—gradually pushing back darkness until full light appears. You may have prayed and still don’t feel anything different today. The doctor’s report might not change tomorrow. But that doesn’t mean God hasn’t already set your breakthrough in motion. From the moment you believe His word, recovery begins. Keep praying. Keep believing. The answer may already be on its way, working its way toward you even when you can’t see it yet.

In a world full of noise, how can we hear God’s response when we pray?

JF: It’s true—it’s a noisy world. Most of us carry around a little device in our hands during all of our waking hours that is constantly shouting for attention and stressing us out. But to hear the still, small voice of God, you need two levels of quiet. You need to quiet your environment, and then you have to quiet your mind—your soul.

The first part is about finding a physical space where distractions are minimized. Jesus often withdrew to lonely places to pray. (Turn that mobile phone off!) But the second level is harder—it’s about stilling the anxious chatter in your own head. That’s where disciplines like fasting, worship, and simply sitting in God’s presence come in. When Elijah was looking for God, the Lord wasn’t in the wind, the earthquake, or the fire. He was in a still, small voice. God often speaks in whispers, which means if our lives are a constant roar, we’ll miss Him entirely. David said, “Surely I have calmed and quieted my soul, Like a weaned child with his mother . . . (Psalms 131:2) Make space for silence. Your soul will thank you, and you’ll start hearing things you’ve been missing.

What advice would you give to someone who wants to grow a stronger daily prayer life but feels overwhelmed or unqualified?

JF: Start with a pattern. Jesus gave us one—we call it the Lord’s Prayer. It’s only sixty-six words, but it contains everything you need: worship, surrender, petition, forgiveness, and spiritual warfare. I’ve prayed through that prayer almost every day for more than thirty years, using it as a roadmap rather than just words to recite. It keeps my prayers focused and comprehensive without requiring me to reinvent the wheel each morning.

And please hear this: you don’t have to have your life perfectly together to pray. The thief on the cross had lived a life of crime. Peter had just failed miserably when he cried out “Lord, save me!” God isn’t looking for polished presentations—He’s looking for honest hearts. Start where you are. Pray what you can. A stumbling, honest prayer moves God’s heart far more than eloquent words that don’t mean anything. Just start talking to Him.

Some people feel unqualified to pray—like they don’t know the “right words.” What would you say to them?

JF: I’d say look at the people Jesus responded to in Scripture. A desperate nobleman who simply said, “Sir, come down before my child dies!” A group of lepers who shouted, “Jesus, Master, have mercy on us!” A criminal in his final moments who gasped, “Lord, remember me when you come into your kingdom.” None of these were theological experts. None of them had the “right words.” They had desperate need and simple faith—and Jesus responded to every single one.

God isn’t counting your words; He’s weighing your faith. He’s not impressed by eloquence—He’s moved by sincerity. When Mary received the angel’s impossible announcement, she didn’t have a prepared speech. She simply said, “Let it be to me according to your word.” Fifteen words that changed human history. Your Heavenly Father wants to hear from you, not from some polished version of you that doesn’t exist. Just talk to Him like He’s your Father—because He is.

GOD ISN’T LOOKING FOR POLISHED PRESENTATIONS—HE’S LOOKING FOR HONEST HEARTS.

JONI LAMB

Dear Partner,

There is something so powerful about obedience to the Lord. Scripture reminds us in Galatians 6:9, “Let us not grow weary in doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up.” Every act of obedience matters. Whether it is a prayer you have prayed, a step of obedience you have taken, or a gift you have given, God sees it all.

Sometimes we don’t immediately see the fruit of what we’ve sown, but God is always working beneath the surface. Just as a farmer trusts that seeds will grow before the first signs of life appear, we can trust that God is bringing increase in His perfect timing. So if you’ve been faithfully believing, serving, giving, or praying — be encouraged! Your labor is not in vain, and God always blesses our obedience.

I see this spiritual principle at work every day through this ministry, and it makes me so grateful for you. Your generosity is planting seeds that are reaching hearts around the world with the love of Jesus. Only Heaven knows how many people have come to know Him because you chose to sow in obedience. One day, we will meet those lives in eternity — what a beautiful reminder that what we do today truly matters forever!

I’m also excited to celebrate a special birthday in our family this month. Please join me in wishing my beautiful daughter, Rebecca, a very happy birthday! She is such a blessing, and I thank God for the joy and faith she brings into our lives.

And speaking of harvest, I am thrilled to share some incredible network news with you. Because of faithful partners like you, Daystar continues to expand its reach across the globe. We have launched on Vodafone Romania to 700,000 homes, Vectra in Poland to 1.25 million homes, and Videotron in Canada to 1.2 million homes. We’ve also launched on Freebie TV, a Texas-based OTT platform with 300,000 monthly active users, and on Stirr, reaching 3.45 million monthly active users.

Every new home reached represents a heart and a family that can encounter the hope of Jesus. Your prayers and generosity make these open doors possible, and together we are sowing seeds that will produce an eternal harvest.

Thank you for standing with us and refusing to grow weary in doing good. I pray this month encourages you to keep sowing, keep believing, and keep trusting God for the harvest ahead.

With gratitude,

Joni Lamb
